OUR PRESS

The prospect of “any sandwich you can think of—plus some “ exhilarates earthling admirers of this Hell’s Kitchen take -out nook where the namesake specialties (all 78 of’em) are so “big”, so “delish” and “so good”, choosing can be a challenge. — Zagat Survey, NYC

New York City, hand picked from Time Out New York’s Eating & Drinking Guide — the TONY 100

Time Out New York

“Before they got uppity, good sandwiches were simple and primordially satisfying-like Planet’s French dip: just beef, bread, and luscious pan juices.”

New York Metro

“All told. Sandwich Planet offers more than 100 choices, which you can customize in a myriad of ways. The basic ingredients like roast beef and baked ham are very good.”

Eric Asimov, The New York Times

“For churascos, head to minuscule newcomer Sandwich Planet. The grilled chicken breast sandwich called a churasco is offered in 29 varieties.”

New York Post

“Sandwich Planet Out-of-this world sandwiches are the name of the game at this 2-year-old cafe; most popular is the turkey club, made on white toast the classic way. Italian versions sell well, too: The De Niro, for example, with roasted peppers, salami, prosciutto, mozzarella and olives is a must-try. Sandwiches run the gamut, soups change daily and salads are big.”
